

Dr. Gabriele LIBERA – Research Fellow, PhD

Since January 2014, Dr. Gabriele LIBERA has been a Research Fellow at University Institute of European Studies – IUSE, Turin (Italy).

From 2011 to 2015, he was PhD Candidate (with full scholarship) in Chinese Philosophy majoring in Daoism at Beijing University, Beijing (China). He defended his thesis and he obtained his PhD in July 2015. His dissertation thesis uses the ideas of Existentialist phenomenology to provide a theoretical basis for Zhuangzi's philosophy of the Ego and his concept of freedom.

He earned his Bachelor Degree and Master Degree cum laude in Foreign Languages and International Relations at Catholic University of Sacred Heart, Milan (Italy). His bachelor thesis focused on the Chinese terminology of solar energy and other forms of sustainable energy.

Dr. Libera has been also Research Fellow at University of Eastern Piedmont (Università degli Studi del Piemonte Orientale Amedeo Avogadro), Novara (Italy), and Research Associate at gLAWcal - Global Law Initiative for Sustainable Development (United Kingdom) within EU Commission funded research projects on sustainable development, climate change, energy and environmental protection.

Since January 2014, he has been EU Commission Marie Curie Fellow at Beijing University, School of Government, Center for European Studies, Beijing (China) and from October 2014 to April 2015 at Tsinghua University, Beijing (China).

His main research areas of interest are sustainable development, Chinese Philosophy, comparative philosophy.

Italian native speaker, fluent in Chinese and English, he has good knowledge of Ancient Chinese and French.